Arts Grant to help students, teachers connect curricula

Art will be a part of the curriculum at Willow Valley Middle School this fall as student artists and teachers work together to create a mural in the school's media center.

The mural, which will be a part of the school's art curriculum, is one of the projects funded by a $1,490 grant from the Utah State Arts Council.

The grant was awarded to the school's art teacher, Lindsey Taylor, to help fund the project.

Taylor said she is excited to see the students' work come to life on the wall.

"This is a great opportunity for our students," she said. "Art is an important part of their education, and this grant will allow us to take it to the next level."
